"THE MAN HE USED TO BE"

THREE REEL FEATURE

This three reel drama should prove a good temperance lesson. It tells the story of a man whose life is nearly wrecked by drink, and tells it clearly and forcibly, but in narrative rather than in dramatic form. In the cast are NAOMI CHILDERS, WM. DUNN, MARY MAURICE, CHAS. KENT, LOGAN PAUL, KATE PRICE, and other Vitagraph stars.

BEANED BY A BEANSHOOTER ..... ONE REEL COMEDY

The skill of the deathly bean-shooter is in a class by itself. Featuring LEO DELANEY, CHAS. RICHMOND and others.

VETERANS' SONS TO FILL RANKS

Want to Get Company of Sixty Men in Gettysburg who will be Ready for Mexican Service if Necessary.

In real seriousness over the Mexican situation Gettysburg's Sons of Veterans will endeavor to recruit their military company to the full quota of sixty members and then offer themselves for service if needed.

A special meeting has been called for eight thirty this evening at their camp room in the G. A. R. Post Hall and a special invitation to attend is extended to all men and boys over the age of sixteen who are eligible to join. The local command is Company B, 6th Regiment Sons of Veterans, and Lieutenant Russel E. Coulson is the commanding officer.

A full company contains sixty men. The Gettysburg company now has on its roll thirty five active members and efforts will be made to secure twenty five others. The camp itself, which is separate from the military organization, contains fifty sons of Civil War soldiers. Alll who are entitled to attend and are interested in the project are invited to this evening's meeting.

Oliver McPherson, brigade sergeant of ordnance, is taking a very keen interest in the recruiting of the Gettysburg company to its full strength, and his position on the brigade staff puts him in excellent position to be of service to the local company in the event of a general call to the Sons of Veterans of the state being issued.

For National Guard.

Though Gettysburg has no National Guard company here it is known that a number of young men are anxious to get into the fray and, if they find they cannot join companies from other towns, it is possible that an effort will be made here to get up enough to form an Adams County command, which it is believed would be very popular just at this time.

$37,500 FOR FARM

Humphrey Farm of 235 Acres Sold for Record Price.

The sale of the Humphrey farm to John M. Potter, a retired business man of near McKeesport, for the record price of 37,500, is another instance of the attention that Frederick county land is attracting away from home. It is the third time this valuable farm has changed hands in the past two years and the new owner will come to Frederick about the middle of August and remain there until he can obtain possession of the place. The farm contains about 235 acres of highly cultivated land and Mr. Potter will devote considerable time and attention to raising thoroughbred cattle.

The house is a modern and attractive one and the outbuildings include two large barns and other very substantial buildings. The farm, which formerly belonged to Lycurgus Hedges, was purchased between two and three years ago by Charles McC. Mathias. The latter sold it to Claude C. Clemson and he disposed of it to Mr. Potter. Each time the property changed hands, it brought an advance in price over the last sale. It is said that the price paid by Mr. Potter is the highest ever negotiated for a farm in Frederick county.

GOES TO JAIL

Was in Motor Party when York Springs Girl was Killed.

Orrin Arnst, the 20 year old joy rider, who a year ago stole an automobile and invited Zulu Myers, formerly of York Springs, to a ride when she met her death, has been sentenced to one year in the county jail at Stroudsburg.

GETS GRETNA CONTRACT

Gettysburg Plumber will Lay the Water Mains.

W. D. Armor, of East Middle street, who has secured the contract to lay the water mains for the National Guard camp at Mt. Gretna left to-day with several workmen for that place.

COMING EVENTS

June 22-24—Base Ball Club Fair New Eberhart Garage.
July 4—John Burns Celebration. County Court House.

THREE BASE BALL PLAYERS INJURED

In Automobile Accident, Trio of Frederick Stars are Badly Hurt and will be Kept out of the Game.

"Bill" King, Frederick's star hurler, "Tex" Meyers, their heavy slugging first sacker, and "Jack" Morrison, the manager of the Frederick Club, were injured Wednesday afternoon, when the big Stanley steamer, in which they were journeying to Martinsburg for the game, crashed over an embankment on South Mountain, between Middletown and Boonsboro. They will all be out of the game for some time. The car is owned by C. A. Stoner who was at the wheel.

King sustained a dislocated hip, "Tex" Meyers probably a broken arm and "Jack" Morrison a badly sprained right wrist. An X-ray photo was taken of "Tex" Meyers arm, but it could not be learned whether it was broken or sprained.

The injuries to these players, who are the cream of the Champs' line-up will come as a great blow to them. King had rounded into the best of shape and was going like a whirlwind the past two weeks. He was slated to hurl Wednesday's game had it been played. The injuries sustained by King are not of a serious nature, but may mean a lot to his pitching. A lay-off of a week to him may have a bad effect just at this time of the season.

The fact that Frederick is playing with Martinsburg, aids them much, because they are playing with a team that is about as badly crippled as themselves. The Mountaineers seem unable to win and are coming down the pennant ladder at a rapid rate.

The automobile in which the team was traveling was damaged, but proceeded as far as Shepherdstown, where it went "out of commission" and other cars had to be obtained to transport them to Martinsburg.

SIGNAL HONOR

Only Eleven Honorary Degrees Conferred in Fifty Years.

At the recent commencement of Carleton college, Northfield, Minnesota, Rev. Prof. Luther A. Weigle, Ph. D., for eleven years occupying the chair of Philosophy in the above college, and recently called to the Horace Bushnell professorship of Christian Nurture at Yale University, was given the degree of D. D. This is only the eighth time that Carleton has granted this degree in the fifty years of its history, and only the eleventh honorary degree of any sort. This fact invests the degree with very special meaning. Dr. Weigle's address after June 26, will be 142 Cold Spring street, New Haven, Connecticut. He is a graduate of Gettysburg College in the class of 1900 and a son of Dr. E. D. Weigle of Camp Hill.

MAY ENLIST

And not Suffer Reduction in Salary or Rank.

John A. Cox, local representative of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, this morning received a letter from Agnew T. Dice, president of the company, stating that any employe answering the call to arms at this time would be granted a furlough, and upon presenting a certificate of honorable discharge at the close of the present difficulties would be reinstated by the railroad at no lower rank or pay than at the time of enlistment. The order of the president of the road also provides that there will be no deduction in time from the employe's pension record for the period of service in the army or militia.

HATCHES PARTRIDGES

Chicken Takes Nest Abandoned when Covering is Removed.

A chicken hen on the L. S. Snyder farm in Huntington township hatched out twenty partridges last week from a nest of eggs that had been deserted by the mother partridge. Three weeks ago Mr. Snyder was mowing some briers and unintentionally cut the covering away from a partridge nest. The mother partridge refused to go back to the nest and Mr. Snyder placed the eggs under a chicken hen. Last week she hatched twenty of the downy little Bob Whites.

JUNE WEDDINGS IN THE COUNTY

Home, Church, and Parsonage Weddings during the Month of Roses. Where Newly Wedded Couples will Reside.

CASHMAN—ARTHUR

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas, in York, Wednesday afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Ethel Thomas, became the bride of Arthur Cashman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. H. Cashman, of New Oxford. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. Mr. Swartz of the Methodist church.

The bridesmaid was Miss Marguerite Goodling, of York, and Robert Thomas, a brother of the bride was best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bridal couple left on a two weeks' wedding tour, after which they will reside in Columbus, Ohio, in which state the bridegroom is a traveling salesman for the Withall Catum Company, of Philadelphia.

HANCE—TRIMMER

Miss Jessie Elizabeth Trimmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Trimmer, of 43 East Middle street, and Harry M. Hance, of Harrisburg, were quietly married to-day at the home of the bride's uncle, Rev. Jacob E. Trimmer, pastor of the Baptist church, Harrisburg.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for a ten day honeymoon to Niagara Falls, Toronto and the Great Lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Hance will be at home to their friends after August 1st at 42 North 18th street, Harrisburg, where the bridegroom is employed by the Philadelphia and Reading Railway.

KING—NUNEMAKER

Walter Allen King, of Gettysburg, and Miss Mary E. Nunemaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nunemaker, were united in marriage, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at Trinity Reformed church parsonage, Waynesboro, by Rev. Dr. F. F. Bahner, pastor of the bride.

Mr. King has been employed for the past several years in the Waynesboro manufacturing plants.

ECKENRODE—MYERS

Miss Mildred Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Myers, of Uriah, and Wilbur Eckenrode, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eckenrode, of Huntington township, were married at the York Springs Lutheran parsonage on Tuesday evening by Rev. Paul Gladfelter.

DAVIS—FANUS

Miss Grace Fanus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Fanus, of Huntington township, and Paul Davis, of Uriah, were married at the Evangelical parsonage in Idaville on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock by Rev. F. E. Brickley.

WHOLE FAMILY

Five Sons of Colonel Lane are Ready to Serve Country.

If war is declared between the United States and Mexico, Col. W. P. Lane, of Hagerstown, who was in command of the First Maryland Regiment in the Spanish-American war, may send five sons to the front. Two sons are officers of the National Guard and will go to Mexico for border duty and three other sons are ready to enlist their services, according to the father.

OFFER HOSPITAL

Trustees of Carlisle Institution in Sympathy with Preparedness Plan.

MAJOR HENRY AND SON BOTH DEAD

Young Attorney who Figured in Cutting Fracas at Time of Anniversary Follows Father in Death.

Hon. Lawrence Davis, treasurer of the city of Roanoke, Virginia, was a visitor to Gettysburg on Wednesday and brought with him the news that Major R. R. Henry and Wm. Byrd Henry, both of Tazewell, are dead, the son's death occurring during the past year. Young Henry will be recalled as the Virginian who cut eight persons at the Hotel Gettysburg during the time of the fiftieth anniversary celebration, and was later paroled by the Adams County Court.

Mr. Davis was a personal friend of Major Henry, the father who was here when sentence was suspended, and who made a number of friends in Gettysburg at that time. It was plainly seen then that the old Confederate veteran was not in robust health and his death occurred some months afterward. Mr. Davis could not give the exact date. Young Henry "made good" after the close of the court proceeding here and gave every indication of leading a useful life and of attaining some prominence, but death cut short his career.

The Henry case attracted not only local attention but nation-wide interest. The governors of Pennsylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia all asked for clemency, as well as three former Virginia governors, and a number of other prominent men. It was generally felt that Henry had committed his assaults while suffering from the effects of intoxication and that he was not entirely to blame for his act. Financial consideration was given to all of his victims and they expressed themselves as perfectly willing to have him freed of any imprisonment.

Wm. Byrd Henry, the defendant, had, up to the time of the Gettysburg affair, led an exemplary life, and the fracas here was the first criminal affair in which he had been connected. The Henry family was widely known in and about Tazewell, and the case was closely followed in the South.

Mr. Davis, who brought the news here of the death of the father and son, was accompanied by Mrs. Davis and a friend, Mrs. Shertz, also of Roanoke. They were registered at the Eagle Hotel.

SPENT NIGHT IN CAR

And Enjoyed Novelty of their Experience, they say.

Rev. William McKinney and family of York Springs spent a night this week in their car which had broken down. Mr. McKinney was on his way home from Bendersville about nine o'clock when something broke in the transmission gearing. The minister tried to have an Idaville mechanic fix the machine but he was not successful. The people living near where the car was stranded would have been very glad to have kept the minister and his family over night had they known of their plight but the McKinneys enjoyed the novelty of spending the night in the car. The next morning it was towed into York Springs.

HARRY W. KUNTZ

Funeral on Friday with Interment at Mt. Victory.

Harry William Kuntz, twin son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kuntz, died at the home of his parents, Route 3 Gardners, Cumberland county, on Wednesday morning at 4:00 o'clock, aged 14 days.

He leaves his parents, grandparents and the following brothers and sisters: Benjamin, Belinda, Nora, Oren, Jacob, Laura, Sylvia, Cornelius, and George, all at home.

Funeral services Friday morning at 9:30, at the house conducted by Rev. Daly Marsh. Interment Mt. Victory church.

GEORGE D. FACKLER

Son of Albert Fackler Died in York. Funeral Friday.

George D. Fackler died Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at his home in York following an illness from tuberculosis, aged 27 years.

Mr. Fackler leaves his wife and one daughter, Marguerite Irene, at home; his father, Albert Fackler, of Gettysburg; three brothers and two sisters.

At the commencement exercises Bryan McCann, of McSherrystown, received the gold medal for having the best standing in the second preparatory class.

Cardinal Gibbons was present today at the commencement exercises at Mt. St. Joseph's this morning.

PLAN BARREL FACTORY

Will Employ Men Both Summer and Winter on County Farms.

A number of men in Upper Huntington township will be given steady work next winter if the plans of the Buttonwood Farms Company are carried out. This company will probably erect an apple barrel factory on one of the four Huntington township fruit farms owned by the corporation. The new industry would give employment to a number of hands during the winter months.

HEAD OF HIS CLASS

Another Gettysburg Man Attains Distinction at Philadelphia School.

At the commencement exercises of the Temple University, Philadelphia, the degree of Ph. G. was conferred upon J. Gilbert Dickson, a son of Mrs. J. Watson Dickson, formerly of this place. Mr. Dickson received honorary mention as to highest general average. He was also president of his class of seventy nine members.

40 U. S. SOLDIERS REPORTED SLAIN

Mexicans Tell of Battle With Pershing's Men.

FUNSTON NOT SURPRISED

Both Sides Suffer Heavily in First Fight Between Carranzistas and U. S. Regulars Below El Paso.

El Paso, Texas, June 22.—A detachment of American cavalry clashed with Carranza forces at Carrizal, about ninety miles south of El Paso, both sides suffering heavy casualties, according to unofficial reports received by Mexican military authorities in Juarez.

According to the report, which the Mexican authorities are investigating, forty Americans were killed by machine gun fire in "a surprising attack."

The Mexican casualties were said not to have been so heavy, but General Felix Gomez is named as being among the Mexican dead.

The American command is said to have been part of a scouting patrol from Guzman, returning to General Pershing's line of communication.

Carrizal, named as the place of the encounter, is about nine miles southwest of Villa Ahumada, the Mexican field base in northern Chihuahua.

Later, General Francisco Gonzales, Mexican commander at Juarez, announced officially that the Mexican command had taken seventeen American prisoners. He also said that General Gomez's death had been confirmed, but said he had no official reports as to the number of casualties on either side.

The wounded, both American and Mexican, the exact number of whom is not known, were taken to Villa Ahumada.

Gonzales said:

"Immediately upon learning of the presence of the American troops in the vicinity of Carrizal, General Felix Gomez despatched a messenger with a request that the American commander withdrew his camp. When the American troops remained motionless, he sent a second despatch bearer, who was fired upon by the American troops after he had delivered his message. The Americans immediately moved forward and attacked General Gomez's command.

"All the prisoners admitted that the blame should be put on the American commander for having ordered the attack. The prisoners were sent to Chihuahua City with the customary protection."

General Gonzales said the report of the engagement was made to him by Lieutenant Colonel Genoveso Rivas, who succeeded to the command of the Carranza troops with the fall of Gomez.

At San Antonio General Funston had received no report from General Pershing of the reported engagement at Carrizal, but he showed no disposition to discredit the report from El Paso, explaining that a subcommander would have reported the incident to General Pershing, who in turn, would have forwarded the report to headquarters in code.

He expressed no surprise that the news had come first from Mexican sources, despatches from San Antonio said.

General George Bell, Jr., who was first informed of the fight by Mexican Consul Garza, said no military action would be taken in El Paso while orders were awaited from General Funston.

In the meantime, he said, his forces were ready for any demonstration from the other side of the Rio Grande.

General Bell said there was no question but that a fight had taken place, but was inclined to disbelieve the report any Americans had been taken prisoner.

General Pershing had given the Mexican troops opportunity to make good their threat to attack him if he moved east or west, but the Mexicans "declined the issue" earlier despatches from the front said.

The American commander sent a small force eastward to Guzman, thirty-five miles from his line of communication, to investigate a report that a concentration of Mexican troops had been made there. He reported the incident to Major General Frederick Funston, adding that the detachment had returned without finding any Mexican troops in that vicinity.

Reports to department headquarters told of the arrival of more troops at Ojinaga, opposite Presidio, Texas, and at Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Eagle Pass, Texas. Beyond Ojinaga increased activity was noticed, but officers believe Colonel Gaston, commanding on the American side, has men enough to meet the situation. The heaviest addition to the Mexican border army was at Piedras Negras where General Murgia arrived with 2000 men.

General Funston announced that to the army's equipment there had been added a large number of searchlights.

Killing of Japanese liquor vendor by American soldiers near the camp at Namaquipa, Mexico, was reported to the war department by General Pershing. The man was shot during a row with three troopers who had escaped through the guard line and wanted liquor. General Pershing said an investigation had failed to reveal their identity.

ALLIES ARE TRYING TO AVERT BREAK

Germany's Enemies Anxious For Oil Supply.

Washington, June 22.—Some intimation as to what General Carranza's next step will be was expected hourly at the state department.

Official advices reported the American rejection of the demand for the recall of General Pershing's troops from Mexico was under consideration by the first chief and his cabinet.

Special Agent Rodgers, who made the report, was unable to forecast the action of the de facto government and threw little light on what was going on in the Mexican capital.

From other sources, however, it was learned that European diplomats are exerting pressure on Carranza to prevent him from going to war with the United States. The entente allies are particularly anxious, it is understood, that nothing should take place at this time to shut off the oil supplies for the French and British navies from the Tampico fields.

Allied diplomatic representatives to Mexico believe, too, that German influences have been working on Carranza in an effort to create a situation that might embarrass the enemies of the central powers. They have asserted that German agencies have been active in stirring up feeling against the United States not only in Mexico, but through South and Central America, to prevent this country from securing trade formerly controlled by German merchants.

The state department had no official reports on the peace-making efforts in Mexico City, although it has been informed indirectly of what is taking place.

WILL LAND MARINES

Secretary Daniels Declares They Will be Sent Ashore in Mexico.

New York, June 22.—American marines will be landed in Mexico whenever there is occasion to protect American citizens, the secretary of the navy Josephus Daniels, said.

He had just made an address at the convention of the National Editorial association, and was on his way to the Brooklyn navy yard.

"But there will be no promiscuous landing of marines there," he added.

Secretary Daniels asserted that the call for more men in the navy will not indicate the calling out of volunteers and naval reserves "at the present time."

"There is no present intention to call out the Atlantic fleet," he added, "because the cruisers and smaller boats should be able to cope with the situation, from the standpoint of the navy."

Wed at Eight, Join Guard at Nine.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 22.—Cupid beat Mars by just one hour this morning, when John Elias Shade, of this city, a member of the Governor's Troop was married to Miss Catherine Emma Mattes, a pretty exchange girl of Middletown. The wedding occurred at eight; the husband of an hour reported to Captain George C. Jack at nine.

Wilson Declines to Speak.

Washington, June 22.—Explaining that he had fully expressed his views on peace at the recent convention of the League to Enforce Peace, President Wilson declined an invitation to address the Baltimore branch of the peace organization next Tuesday night. He said he believed it was not wise for him to add to his previous statements on the subject.

2,000,000 Armenians Slain.

Paris, June 22.—A total of 2,000,000 Armenians have been massacred by the Turks since the beginning of the war, says Henry Darby, the correspondent of the Paris Journal, who has been investigating the atrocities at Erzerum.

RUSSIANS PUSH ON IN LEMBERG DRIVE

Advance 12 Miles in Move on Vladimir Volinski.

ARE BOMBARDING BRODY

Three Converging Movements of Czar's Forces Head Toward Lemberg—Teuton Losses 350,000.

Petrograd, June 22.—The Russian army under General Kaledines in Volhynia has advanced twelve miles in the direction of the Vladimir Volinski-Sokal line in the last forty-eight hours.

The Austrian treasury at Lutsk was captured when the Russians occupied the fortress.

German reinforcements are pouring into Volhynia and Galicia in an effort to save the Austro-Hungarian army and check the onrush of General Brussiloff's armies.

Hard fighting is extending all along the front with part of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's armies engaged north of the Pinsk marshes.

Furious battles are raging on the Stochod-Styr front, northwest of Lutsk, where the Germans are striving to prevent the Russians from driving a wedge between the armies of General von Linsingen and General von Bothmer and to check the drive on Vladimir Volinsk, the northern gateway to Lemberg.

It is unofficially reported that the Russians are now in control of Kolomea.

(Kolomea is a strongly fortified city in Galicia, fifty miles northwest of Czernowitz. It lies on the Pruth river and is the center of a network of strategic roads. The main railway line running through Galicia, from Lemberg to Czernowitz passes through Kolomea.)

The Austro-Hungarian force on the Tarnopol front is seriously menaced with investments as a result of the rapid advance of the Russian forces northwest of Czernowitz and in Volhynia.

The Russian army advancing upon Lemberg by the way of the Rovno-Lemberg railway is shelling the Austro-Hungarian positions at Brody, and the fall of the town is believed to be imminent.

The Russian advance on the extreme left flank of the southeastern line continues to reward them with new territory between the Rumanian frontier and the Carpathians, and—what is vastly more important to the plans of the Russian military—with an increasing number of prisoners.

General Pflanzer's army, isolated by the swift advance of the Russian forces, has now been cut in two. One part of this disorganized force is in precipitate flight along the Rumanian frontier, facing the alternative of capture by General Letchitzky or internment for the rest of the war in Rumania. The other section is making for the Carpathians—racing for its life with the Russian forces, which are trying to thrust themselves between the mountain wall and the retreating enemy.

The capture of either or both of these two sections will mark another step in the czar's carefully prosecuted scheme of eliminating Austria from the war by disposing completely of her armies. That the Russians have succeeded even beyond their own expectations in the fulfillment of this plan is proved in the belief of military observers here, by the toll, as officially stated, of 172,484 prisoners, representing an estimated loss of 350,000 men, taken along the 250-mile front to date. This number represents more than one-half of the original Austrian forces which faced the Russians on this front, and more than one-third of the entire Austrian armies.

ATTACK AT CHAMPAGNE

Violent Infantry Attack Near Rheims Repulsed by French.

Paris, June 22.—A violent attack on the French positions northwest of Rheims was made by the Germans at Hill No. 108 and in the direction of Berry-Au-Bac, according to an official statement issued by the war office.

The attack was repulsed by the French artillery fire.

The Germans exploded two mines before launching their infantry against the French trenches. Their repulse was due, the statement said, to the effectiveness of the French screen fire.

In the Verdun sector a mutual bombardment was maintained during the night.

Verdun is not mentioned in the German official report from the western front.

5 Killed in Explosive Factory.

Parry Sound, Ont., June 22.—At least five workmen were killed and twenty seriously injured in an explosion followed by fire in the plant of the Canadian Explosives, Ltd. The explosion occurred in a shrapnel factory, housed in a large building, which was destroyed. The cause of the explosion was undetermined. About seventy men were at work in the building at the time.

Looks for Sudden Peace.

Manchester, June 22.—Lord Derby, in a speech, said he believed the war would end suddenly, but that the end is not yet in sight.

FUNSTON MAKES NEW DEMAND FOR TROOPS

17,000 Mexicans Near Pershing Prompts Demand.

San Antonio, Tex., June 22.—Major General Frederick Funston, fearing an attack upon Brigadier General John J. Pershing's forces, has made a second request to the war department that all available militia, especially cavalry, be sent to the border at once.

The first request was sent to Washington Tuesday. General Funston has received word that the New York and Illinois cavalry already are fully equipped and ready to take the field.

Seventeen thousand Mexican troops, under General Jacinto Trevino, are converging upon General Pershing's forces from the east and northwest, according to a despatch from Columbus, N. M. The Mexicans, divided in two columns, are heading for El Valle and Namiquipa.

Scouts sent out by General Pershing are said to have discovered the approaching Mexicans. Despite the seriousness of this information, army officers feel no alarm over the safety of the expedition.

NOTED AVIATOR KILLED

Lieutenant Immelmann Had Brought Down Fifteen Adversaries.

Berlin, June 22.—Lieutenant Immelmann, whose exploits as an aviator have made his name known throughout the world, is reported to have been killed in a fall with his aeroplane.

The lieutenant's name was first mentioned in an official report from the German war office on October 2, 1915, when it was related that he had shot down his fourth aeroplane. The last mention of his name in an official communication was on May 17, when he shot down his fifteenth aeroplane. He was decorated by the emperor with the Order Pour le Merite. His record is only exceeded by that of Captain Boelke, who had eighteen machines to his credit when he was killed last week.

MRS. DREXEL GETS ALIMONY

Wife of Anthony J. Awarded $50,000 a Year in London.

London, June 22.—Mrs. Rita Armstrong Drexel, wife of Anthony J. Drexel, formerly of Philadelphia, was given judgment against her husband for a yearly allowance of $50,000 by Justice Neville in the chancery court.

When the case was last before the court, in December, 1915, Mr. Drexel contested the jurisdiction of the English courts on the ground that he was a resident of France. This point was decided against him, and when court opened Mr. Drexel's attorney said that as it has been decided that the English courts had jurisdiction, he could not defend the case.

Thumb Injury Kills Man.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 22.—A slight tearing of the thumb of his right hand has caused the death of L. C. Jones, fifty-nine years old, of this city. On May 20 Jones was hurt in an auto collision. The injury to his right thumb was of so slight a nature as not to cause alarm. Three days later the whole hand had swollen, and the member was amputated. His condition grew steadily worse until Wednesday, when he died after great suffering.

No Progressive Ticket in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., June 22.—There will be no Progressive party ticket in Kansas this year. This was made known when it was announced that the ten presidential electors chosen at the state convention last month would not file their declarations. It was announced some time ago that there would be no Progressive state or congressional tickets in this state.

The Weather.

CLAIM THE OLDEST

Gettysburg College Has Longest Lived Alumnus in the Country.

The Reporter's Nosegay in this morning's "Philadelphia Record" says:

Rev. W. F. Eyster, who was pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Germantown avenue and Queen lane, from 1844 until 1851, and who now lives in Crete, Neb., at the age of 94 years, is believed to be the oldest living college graduate in the United States. A recent published paragraph in a weekly magazine devoted to young people states that "Stephen K. Williams, a graduate of Union College in 1837, and who died March 30, 1916, was believed to have been the oldest of the oldest living graduates. Pennsylvania College, at Gettysburg, is confident that by Mr. Williams' death the distinction of senority has passed to one of its graduates of the class of 1839, Dr. Eyster; but it may be that some other college has a graduate of 1839 living, or even that some graduate of 1838 has not yet won the fatal asterisk in the alumni catalogue.

In 1848, at the time of a great religious revival in Germantown, Dr. Eyster received 60 new members into Trinity Lutheran church at one time, that being the largest single accession of membership the church ever had. Rev. Henry Eyster Jacobs, dean of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mount Airy, is a grandnephew of Dr. Eyster.

MANY ORGANIZE

Club Contests for Boys and Girls all Over the State.

There are approximately 2,200 members of the Boys Corn Clubs throughout the State according to reports received by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Corn Clubs have been organized in thirty two of the sixty seven counties and there is a total of about 100 clubs, one of which is in Adams County. In many counties there is only one club and a county contest is held, but in others where the work has advanced there are sectional clubs conducted by schools, agricultural associations and banks. Several banks have organized contests in their immediate localities and have offered cash prizes for the best ears of corn and the best production to an acre or half acre.

It is estimated that there are twenty five cow testing organizations in the State and seven hog raising contests have been reported. In addition there are potato, garden, poultry and stock clubs, while in many sections domestic science clubs have large memberships.

The clubs' work is rapidly being organized throughout the State and the method of interesting the boys and girls is having an effect to keep them on the farms and interested in better agriculture.

PARDON IS REFUSED

Two Objections to Giving Freedom to Slayer of Fairfield Man.

William Barnes, serving a sentence of from ten to twelve years in the Eastern Pententiary for killing William Daywalt, formerly of near Fairfield, was refused a pardon on Wednesday. Mr. Daywalt, at the time of the killing was a Waynesboro officer and was helping to arrest the Barnes brothers The elder Barnes was fatally shot in the affair and confessed to having fired the shot which killed Daywalt but the confession had little weight. The board of pardons refused to act in Barnes' behalf on Wednesday for two reasons, first because of petitions asking that a refusal be made, and second because the father of Mrs. Barnes agreed to continue providing for the family if the man were kept in confinement.

ALL CROPS LARGE EXCEPT THE OATS

Bumper Yields of Wheat, Rye, and Hay. State Forecast Shows Conditions.

Splendid improvement has been noticed in the wheat, rye and hay crops in every section of Pennsylvania during the past month and reports that have reached the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture indicate the possibilities of new records of production being established this year. Last year one of the largest crops of oats ever produced in Pennsylvania was harvested, but the conditions are not encouraging for this season.

Wheat has shown a steady improvement during the spring and now stands at 98 per cent. compared with an average. At this time last year the average was 92 per cent. and yet an average of 19 bushels to an acre was established throughout the State. Prominent farmers expect the record of the past year to be broken as very little wheat was winter killed and only about 4,460 acres ploughed down. There is an estimated area of 1,333,540 acres to be harvested, which with favorable conditions should yield close to 27,000,000 bushels Last year the acreage was 1,312,000 acres.

The condition of the rye has improved one per cent. over a month ago and is four per cent. better than a year ago at this time. The condition is now 98 per cent. of an average and the estimated acreage to be harvested is 266,000 acres compared with 271,600 acres a year ago.

Prospects for an enormous hay crop are very bright and the Department of Agriculture is receiving samples of some of the finest clover that has ever been grown in the State. Last year at this time the prospect of an average yield was only 87 per cent., but this month the indications point to a yield of 103 per cent. of an average or approximately 4,348,000 tons of hay, compared with a yield of 3,558,000 tons last year.

The area sown to oats is estimated at 1,050,680 acres. This is four per cent. smaller than last year and the condition is 90 per cent., of an average as compared with 99 per cent., a year ago. This decrease is largely due to the cold and wet weather that prevailed at oats sowing time. Many farmers could not get the ground in proper condition for seeding. Last year one of the largest crops of oats ever harvested in Pennsylvania was recorded with an average of 39 bushels to an acre, but this season, under present conditions the indications are that the yield compared with the ten year average of 30.6 bushels to an acre will be a little less than 28 bushels to an acre. The late sowing and unfavorable weather are responsible for the condition of the oats being below the average at the present time and later reports may bring about brighter prospects.

The corn planting was extremely late and with unfavorable weather the reports at this time are not complete and no estimate of any accuracy can be made at this time.

ANOTHER TEAM

Hotel Proprietors will Show Ability on the Bases.

The Court House base ball team has accepted a challenge from the hotel men's nine and will meet in deadly combat on the Kurtz Playground next Monday evening at five o'clock. The new aggregation in the list of local base ball teams will present the following line-up: pitcher, Aaron Schlosser; catcher, George Lynch; first base George Gangwisch; second base, John Hall; short stop, Ken. Lynch; third base, "Bill" Eckert; outfielders, Naylor Tate, George Sipe, Charles Kimple or Davd Shultz.

PLAN BIG TIME

Parade and Speaking at Dedication of New Armory.

The New Oxford Sons of Veterans are completing the plans for the dedication of their new armory on July 4th. A big parade of patriotic and military orders from York and Adams counties will be held. The address will be made by Congressman Albert Johnston, of the State of Washington. Congressman Beales will be master of ceremonies at the rostrum. The local patriotic orders are making their plans to take part in the event.

WILL CHANGE BRIDGE

No More Accidents after New Oxford Structure is Fixed.

Repairs to the bridge over the Conewago a mile this side of New Oxford are contemplated by the county commissioners, which will do away with a very dangerous condition. The reconstruction will allow vehicles approaching from one side to be seen from the other, and the likelihood of accidents will be materially reduced. The repairs contemplate new wings, a concrete floor and the change in grade.

KILL THE BORER

Get after the Pest at once and Keep after it.

Reports from several sections of the State indicate that peach tree borers are unusually active at this time of the year. One correspondent in writing to Zoologist H. A. Surface, of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, calls attention to "many slender worms, white and quite active, acting a good deal like very minute, quick acting angle worms." Professor Surface says:

"The slender white worms found in the gum at the base of peach trees are the larvae of flies. They feed in the gums and do not attack the trees. They do not cause the gum to exude and therefore are not injurious. The presence of gum does not mean the presence of borers, as gum may come from several causes, but when there are fine grains, like sawdust, in the gum, it is a sure evidence of the presence of peach tree borers.

"The only thing to do is to go after them with a knife and cut them out, or dissolve one ounce of cyanide of potassium in two gallons of water and pour this around the base of the tree and cover it with earth. Beginning about the latter part of June wash the base of the tree once a month for three applications with lime-sulfur solution containing some sediment, and this will keep other borers from entering."

WOULD STAY EAST

Howard Gets Release so that he Need not Return to Denver.

When Earl Howard was let go by Denver this spring it was under agreement that he should return in August for a further trial in class A ball. In speaking of Howard's release the Denver paper gave him credit for a vast amount of stuff but said he needed a year more experience to be ripe for fast company. Then with a league composed largely of elder players Rebel Oakes, manager of the Denver Bears, wanted men of known class A ability. Without any of that "I didn't get a fair chance" stuff Earl has decided that Colorado is too far away and if any managers in higher leagues want his services it will have to be in this section of the country, so at his own request he has secured his outright release from the Denver club.

HARD LUCK BUT WIN

Hanover Players Do not Let Troubles Discourage them.

Manager Starr, of the Hanover team, has been able to keep up a winning club despite the efforts of Fortune to put him down. Many men facing his discouragements would have thrown up their job. Bill Pownall was out two weeks with a dislocated knee, Mackert, regarded throughout the league as a mighty clever ball player, was lost; "Hank" Knauer, who had won six out of his seven games, quit; "Ned" Crowder was out for almost two weeks with a broken rib and now to top the whole story Starr himself is playing with a torn hand. Despite these handicaps "Billy" has given Hanover a winning club.

She Sprouts.

The bamboo sometimes grows two feet in twenty-four hours, says the Indianapolis News. There are 30 varieties of this tree; the smallest is only six inches in height, and the largest 150 feet.

DISPLAY FLAGS SAYS BURGESS

Gettysburg should Follow Custom Observed All over the United States in Time of War and Show Colors.

Following the example set by other towns and cities all over the United States, Gettysburg will display the flag during the present stirring times when the country is threatened with war, if not actually engaged in it. Burgess Eicholtz this morning issued a request that all business places and private residences put out their flags to show that this town is in line with the spirit shown elsewhere.

The general purpose in displaying the flag is to instill patriotism and to awaken love of country in the hearts of all citizens. In towns and cities where recruiting is going on for the militia, the appearance of the flag is said to be one of the greatest influences to get young men to join the service. Others who have no intention of going into the regular army or the militia are stirred to activity in other lines and the effect is most wholesome.

All over the country the flags are being flung to the breeze and the effect is sure to be marked as one cannot go anywhere without seeing the Stars and Stripes. Adams County towns in addition to Gettysburg are asked to fall in line and this section will do its full share.

Foolish Believers in Luck.

Shallow men believe in luck, believe in circumstances. It was somebody's name, or he happened to be there at the time, or it was so then, and an other day it would have been otherwise. Strong men believe in cause and effect. The man was born to do it, and his father was born to be the father of him and of this deed, and by looking narrowly, you shall see there was no luck in the matter, but it was all a problem in arithmetic, or an experiment in chemistry.—Emerson.

Princeton's Crew Captain.

Robert Armstrong Cochran of Maysville, Ky., has been re-elected captain of the Princeton varsity crew for next year. Cochran has been a member of the varsity crew for two years and stroked the eight which defeated Yale, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Columbia and the Navy this spring. Cochran prepared for Princeton at the Montclair academy and the Princeton Preparatory school.

MILITIA EASY FOR RAILROADS

Have Ample Facilities, They Report to Take All Troops to Border.

The railroads of the country say they are ready for the greatest preparedness test—moving of the militia of the country to the Mexican border.

Railroad officials east and west unite in declaring that as fast as the administration orders state troops moved they will be ready to transport them. The way is cleared for the movement of troop trains, and engines and cars sufficient to handle the thousands of men are said to be available.

The problem of transporting supplies may be more complicated. The eastern roads are just emerging from a serious freight congestion, but the managers believe sufficient cars will be available to handle the additional business.

"Western railroads, facing their greatest test for efficiency, can move the 80,000 to 100,000 militia summoned to the Mexican border without a hitch and without affecting regular passenger traffic." This was the statement of railroad officials who schedule the operation of most of the troop trains.

HOUSE TO ARREST MARSHALL

Federal Attorney in New York to be Haled Before Bar for Contempt.

Washington, June 22.—United States district attorney H. Snowden Marshall, of New York, will be haled before the bar of the house to answer a charge of contempt because of criticism of the judiciary sub-committee's investigation of impeachment proceedings against him.

This action was decided upon by the house Tuesday when it sustained, by a vote of 208 to 85, charges of contempt against Mr. Marshall. It is probable that he will be publicly censured. Impeachment may also be imposed.

Munitions Men Needed at Home.

Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the industrial preparedness committee of the naval consulting board, will call the attention of the war department to the inadvisability of calling for military duty skilled workmen of industrial plants manufacturing war munitions. A representative of one of the largest manufacturers spoke to Mr. Coffin of the matter.

Bad Outlook for the Angels.

Grandma was very strict with little Neil, making him pick up his playthings and put them away when he was through with them. He was going out to see his dog one day and when grandma called him back he said: "I'll bet the angels will be sorry when you get to heaven, grandma."

40 U. S. SOLDIERS REPORTED SLAIN

Mexicans Tell of Battle With Pershing's Men.

FUNSTON NOT SURPRISED

Both Sides Suffer Heavily in First Fight Between Carranzistas and U. S. Regulars Below El Paso.

El Paso, Texas, June 22.—A detachment of American cavalry clashed with Carranza forces at Carrizal, about ninety miles south of El Paso, both sides suffering heavy casualties, according to unofficial reports received by Mexican military authorities in Juarez.

According to the report, which the Mexican authorities are investigating, forty Americans were killed by machine gun fire in "a surprising attack."

The Mexican casualties were said not to have been so heavy, but General Felix Gomez is named as being among the Mexican dead.

The American command is said to have been part of a scouting patrol from Guzman, returning to General Pershing's line of communication.

Carrizal, named as the place of the encounter, is about nine miles southwest of Villa Ahumada, the Mexican field base in northern Chihuahua.

Later, General Francisco Gonzales, Mexican commander at Juarez, announced officially that the Mexican command had taken seventeen American prisoners. He also said that General Gomez's death had been confirmed, but said he had no official reports as to the number of casualties on either side.

The wounded, both American and Mexican, the exact number of whom is not known, were taken to Villa Ahumada.

Gonzales said:

"Immediately upon learning of the presence of the American troops in the vicinity of Carrizal, General Felix Gomez despatched a messenger with a request that the American commander withdrew his camp. When the American troops remained motionless, he sent a second despatch bearer, who was fired upon by the American troops after he had delivered his message. The Americans immediately moved forward and attacked General Gomez's command.

"All the prisoners admitted that the blame should be put on the American commander for having ordered the attack. The prisoners were sent to Chihuahua City with the customary protection."

General Gonzales said the report of the engagement was made to him by Lieutenant Colonel Genoveso Rivas, who succeeded to the command of the Carranza troops with the fall of Gomez.

At San Antonio General Funston had received no report from General Pershing of the reported engagement at Carrizal, but he showed no disposition to discredit the report from El Paso, explaining that a subcommander would have reported the incident to General Pershing, who in turn, would have forwarded the report to headquarters in code.

He expressed no surprise that the news had come first from Mexican sources, despatches from San Antonio said.

General George Bell, Jr., who was first informed of the fight by Mexican Consul Garza, said no military action would be taken in El Paso while orders were awaited from General Funston.

In the meantime, he said, his forces were ready for any demonstration from the other side of the Rio Grande.

General Bell said there was no question but that a fight had taken place, but was inclined to disbelieve the report any Americans had been taken prisoner.

General Pershing had given the Mexican troops opportunity to make good their threat to attack him if he moved east or west, but the Mexicans "declined the issue" earlier despatches from the front said.

The American commander sent a small force eastward to Guzman, thirty-five miles from his line of communication, to investigate a report that a concentration of Mexican troops had been made there. He reported the incident to Major General Frederick Funston, adding that the detachment had returned without finding any Mexican troops in that vicinity.

Reports to department headquarters told of the arrival of more troops at Ojinaga, opposite Presidio, Texas, and at Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Eagle Pass, Texas. Beyond Ojinaga increased activity was noticed, but officers believe Colonel Gaston, commanding on the American side, has men enough to meet the situation. The heaviest addition to the Mexican border army was at Piedras Negras where General Murgia arrived with 2000 men.

General Funston announced that to the army's equipment there had been added a large number of searchlights.

Killing of Japanese liquor vendor by American soldiers near the camp at Namaquipa, Mexico, was reported to the war department by General Pershing. The man was shot during a row with three troopers who had escaped through the guard line and wanted liquor. General Pershing said an investigation had failed to reveal their identity.

ALLIES ARE TRYING TO AVERT BREAK

Germany's Enemies Anxious For Oil Supply.

Washington, June 22.—Some intimation as to what General Carranza's next step will be was expected hourly at the state department.

Official advices reported the American rejection of the demand for the recall of General Pershing's troops from Mexico was under consideration by the first chief and his cabinet.

Special Agent Rodgers, who made the report, was unable to forecast the action of the de facto government and threw little light on what was going on in the Mexican capital.

From other sources, however, it was learned that European diplomats are exerting pressure on Carranza to prevent him from going to war with the United States. The entente allies are particularly anxious, it is understood, that nothing should take place at this time to shut off the oil supplies for the French and British navies from the Tampico fields.

Allied diplomatic representatives to Mexico believe, too, that German influences have been working on Carranza in an effort to create a situation that might embarrass the enemies of the central powers. They have asserted that German agencies have been active in stirring up feeling against the United States not only in Mexico, but through South and Central America, to prevent this country from securing trade formerly controlled by German merchants.

The state department had no official reports on the peace-making efforts in Mexico City, although it has been informed indirectly of what is taking place.

WILL LAND MARINES

Secretary Daniels Declares They Will be Sent Ashore in Mexico.

New York, June 22.—American marines will be landed in Mexico whenever there is occcasion to protect American citizens, the secretary of the navy Josephus Daniels, said.

He had just made an address at the convention of the National Editorial association, and was on his way to the Brooklyn navy yard.

"But there will be no promiscuous landing of marines there," he added.

Secretary Daniels asserted that the call for more men in the navy will not indicate the calling out of volunteers and naval reserves "at the present time."

"There is no present intention to call out the Atlantic fleet," he added, "because the cruisers and smaller boats should be able to cope with the situation, from the standpoint of the navy."

Wed at Eight, Join Guard at Nine.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 22.—Cupid beat Mars by just one hour this morning, when John Elias Shade, of this city, a member of the Governor's Troop was married to Miss Catherine Emma Mattes, a pretty exchange girl of Middletown. The wedding occurred at eight; the husband of an hour reported to Captain George C. Jack at nine.

Wilson Declines to Speak.

Washington, June 22.—Explaining that he had fully expressed his views on peace at the recent convention of the League to Enforce Peace, President Wilson declined an invitation to address the Baltimore branch of the peace organization next Tuesday night. He said he believed it was not wise for him to add to his previous statements on the subject.

RUSSIANS PUSH ON IN LEMBERG DRIVE

Advance 12 Miles in Move on Vladimir Volinski.

ARE BOMBARDING BRODY

Three Converging Movements of Czar's Forces Head Toward Lemberg—Teuton Losses 350,000.

Petrograd, June 22.—The Russian army under General Kaledniess in Volhynia has advanced twelve miles in the direction of the Vladimir Volinski-Sokal line in the last forty-eight hours.

The Austrian treasury at Lutsk was captured when the Russians occupied the fortress.

German reinforcements are pouring into Volhynia and Galicia in an effort to save the Austro-Hungarian army and check the onrush of General Brussiloff's armies.

Hard fighting is extending all along the front with part of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's armies engaged north of the Pinsk marshes.

Furious battles are raging on the Stochod-Styr front, northwest of Lutsk, where the Germans are striving to prevent the Russians from driving a wedge between the armies of General von Linsingen and General von Bothmer and to check the drive on Vladimir Volinsk, the northern gateway to Lemberg.

It is unofficially reported that the Russians are now in control of Kolomea.

(Kolomea is a strongly fortified city in Galicia, fifty miles northwest of Czernowitz. It lies on the Pruth river and is the center of a network of strategic roads. The main railway line running through Galicia, from Lemberg to Czernowitz passes through Kolomea.)

The Austro-Hungarian force on the Tarnopol front is seriously menaced with investments as a result of the rapid advance of the Russian forces northwest of Czernowitz and in Volhynia.

The Russian army advancing upon Lemberg by the way of the Rovno-Lemberg railway is shelling the Austro-Hungarian positions at Brody, and the fall of the town is believed to be imminent.

The Russian advance on the extreme left flank of the southeastern line continues to reward them with new territory between the Rumanian frontier and the Carpathians, and—what is vastly more important to the plans of the Russian military—with an increasing number of prisoners.

General Pflanzer's army, isolated by the swift advance of the Russian forces, has now been cut in two. One part of this disorganized force is in precipitate flight along the Rumanian frontier, facing the alternative of capture by General Letchitzky or internment for the rest of the war in Rumania. The other section is making for the Carpathians—racing for its life with the Russian forces, which are trying to thrust themselves between the mountain wall and the retreating enemy.

The capture of either or both of these two sections will mark another step in the czar's carefully prosecuted scheme of eliminating Austria from the war by disposing completely of her armies. That the Russians have succeeded even beyond their own expectations in the fulfillment of this plan is proved in the belief of military observers here, by the toll, as officially stated, of 172,484 prisoners, representing an estimated loss of 350,000 men, taken along the 250-mile front to date. This number represents more than one-half of the original Austrian forces which faced the Russians on this front, and more than one-third of the entire Austrian armies.

ATTACK AT CHAMPAGNE

Violent Infantry Attack Near Rheims Repulsed by French.

Paris, June 22.—A violent attack on the French positions northwest of Rheims was made by the Germans at Hill No. 108 and in the direction of Berry-Au-Bac, according to an official statement issued by the war office.

The attack was repulsed by the French artillery fire.

The Germans exploded two mines before launching their infantry against the French trenches. Their repulse was due, the statement said, to the effectiveness of the French screen fire.

In the Verdun sector a mutual bombardment was maintained during the night.

Verdun is not mentioned in the German official report from the western front.

5 Killed in Explosive Factory.

Parry Sound, Ont., June 22.—At least five workmen were killed and twenty seriously injured in an explosion followed by fire in the plant of the Canadian Explosives, Ltd. The explosion occurred in a shrapnel factory, housed in a large building, which was destroyed. The cause of the explosion was undetermined. About seventy men were at work in the building at the time.

17,000 Mexicans Near Pershing Prompts Demand.

San Antonio, Tex., June 22.—Major General Frederick Funston, fesring an attack upon Brigadier General John J. Pershing's forces, has made a second request to the war department that all available militia, especially cavalry, be sent to the border at once.

The first request was sent to Washington Tuesday. General Funston has received word that the New York and Illinois cavalry already are fully equipped and ready to take the field.

Seventeen thousand Mexican troops, under General Jacinto Trevino, are converging upon General Pershing's forces from the east and northwest, according to a despatch from Columbus, N. M. The Mexicans, divided in two columns, are heading for El Valle and Namiquipa.

Scouts sent out by General Pershing are said to have discovered the approaching Mexicans. Despite the seriousness of this information, army officers feel no alarm over the safety of the expedition.

NOTED AVIATOR KILLED

Lieutenant Immelmann Had Brought Down Fifteen Adversaries.

Berlin, June 22.—Lieutenant Immelmann, whose exploits as an aviator have made his name known throughout the world, is reported to have been killed in a fall with his aeroplane.

The lieutenant's name was first mentioned in an official report from the German war office on October 2, 1915, when it was related that he had shot down his fourth aeroplane. The last mention of his name in an official communication was on May 17, when he shot down his fifteenth aeroplane. He was decorated by the emperor with the Order Pour le Merite. His record is only exceeded by that of Captain Boelke, who had eighteen machines to his credit when he was killed last week.

MRS. DREXEL GETS ALIMONY

Wife of Anthony J. Awarded $50,000 a Year in London.

London, June 22.—Mrs. Rita Armstrong Drexel, wife of Anthony J. Drexel, formerly of Philadelphia, was given judgment against her husband for a yearly allowance of $50,000 by Justice Neville in the chancery court.

When the case was last before the court, in December, 1915, Mr. Drexel contested the jurisdiction of the English courts on the ground that he was a resident of France. This point was decided against him, and when court opened Mr. Drexel's attorney said that as it has been decided that the English courts had jurisdiction, he could not defend the case.

Thumb Injury Kills Man.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 22.—A slight tearing of the thumb of his right hand has caused the death of L. C. Jones fifty-nine years old, of this city. On May 20 Jones was hurt in an auto collision. The injury to his right thumb was of so slight a nature as not to cause alarm. Three days later the whole hand had swollen, and the member was amputated. His condition grew steadily worse until Wednesday, when he died after great suffering.

No Progressive Ticket in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., June 22.—There will be no Progressive party ticket in Kansas this year. This was made known when it was announced that the republican presidential electors chosen at the state convention last month would not file their declarations. It was announced some time ago that there would be no Progressive state or congressional tickets in this state.

CLAIM THE OLDEST

Gettysburg College Has Longest Lived Alumnus in the Country.

The Reporter's Nosegay in this morning's "Philadelphia Record" says:

Rev. W. F. Eyster, who was pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Germantown avenue and Queen lane, from 1844 until 1851, and who now lives in Crete, Neb., at the age of 94 years, is believed to be the oldest living college graduate in the United States. A recent published paragraph in a weekly magazine devoted to young people states that "Stephen K. Williams, a graduate of Union College in 1837, and who died March 30, 1916, was believed to have been the oldest of the oldest living graduates. Pennsylvania College, at Gettysburg, is confident that by Mr. Williams' death the distinction of senority has passed to one of its graduates of the class of 1839, Dr. Eyster; but it may be that some other college has a graduate of 1839 living, or even that some graduate of 1838 has not yet won the fatal asterisk in the alumni catalogue.

In 1848, at the time of a great religious revival in Germantown, Dr. Eyster received 60 new members into Trinity Lutheran church at one time, that being the largest single accession of membership the church ever had. Rev. Henry Eyster Jacobs, dean of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Mount Airy, is a grandnephew of Dr. Eyster.

MANY ORGANIZE

Club Contests for Boys and Girls all Over the State.

There are approximately 2,200 members of the Boys Corn Clubs throughout the State according to reports received by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Corn Clubs have been organized in thirty two of the sixty seven counties and there is a total of about 100 clubs, one of which is in Adams County. In many counties there is only one club and a county contest is held, but in others where the work has advanced there are sectional clubs conducted by schools, agricultural associations and banks. Several banks have organized contests in their immediate localities and have offered cash prizes for the best ears of corn and the best production to an acre or half acre.

It is estimated that there are twenty five cow testing organizations in the State and seven hog raising contests have been reported. In addition there are potato, garden, poultry and stock clubs, while in many sections domestic science clubs have large memberships.

The clubs' work is rapidly being organized throughout the State and the method of interesting the boys and girls is having an effect to keep them on the farms and interested in better agriculture.

PARDON IS REFUSED

Two Objections to Giving Freedom to Slayer of Fairfield Man.

William Barnes, serving a sentence of from ten to twelve years in the Eastern Pententiary for killing William Daywalt, formerly of near Fairfield, was refused a pardon on Wednesday. Mr. Daywalt, at the time of the killing was a Waynesboro officer and was helping to arrest the Barnes brothers The elder Barnes was fatally shot in the affair and confessed to having fired the shot which killed Daywalt but the confession had little weight. The board of pardons refused to act in Barnes' behalf on Wednesday for two reasons, first because of petitions asking that a refusal be made, and second because the father of Mrs. Barnes agreed to continue providing for the family if the man were kept in confinement.

ALL CROPS LARGE EXCEPT THE OATS

Bumper Yields of Wheat, Rye, and Hay. State Forecast Shows Conditions.

Splendid improvement has been noticed in the wheat, rye and hay crops in every section of Pennsylvania during the past month and reports that have reached the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture indicate the possibilities of new records of production being established this year. Last year one of the largest crops of oats ever produced in Pennsylvania was harvested, but the conditions are not encouraging for this season.

Wheat has shown a steady improvement during the spring and now stands at 98 per cent. compared with an average. At this time last year the average was 92 per cent. and yet an average of 19 bushels to an acre was established throughout the State. Prominent farmers expect the record of the past year to be broken as very little wheat was winter killed and only about 4,460 acres ploughed down. There is an estimated area of 1,333,540 acres to be harvested, which with favorable conditions should yield close to 27,000,000 bushels Last year the acreage was 1,312,000 acres.

The condition of the rye has improved one per cent. over a month ago and is four per cent. better than a year ago at this time. The condition is now 98 per cent. of an average and the estimated acreage to be harvested is 266,000 acres compared with 271,600 acres a year ago.

Prospects for an enormous hay crop are very bright and the Department of Agriculture is receiving samples of some of the finest clover that has ever been grown in the State. Last year at this time the prospect of an average yield was only 87 per cent., but this month the indications point to a yield of 103 per cent. of an average or approximately 4,348,000 tons of hay, compared with a yield of 3,558,000 tons last year.

The area sown to oats is estimated at 1,050,680 acres. This is four per cent. smaller than last year and the condition is 90 per cent., of an average as compared with 99 per cent., a year ago. This decrease is largely due to the cold and wet weather that prevailed at oats sowing time. Many farmers could not get the ground in proper condition for seeding. Last year one of the largest crops of oats ever harvested in Pennsylvania was recorded with an average of 39 bushels to an acre, but this season, under present conditions the indications are that the yield compared with the ten year average of 30.6 bushels to an acre will be a little less than 28 bushels to an acre. The late sowing and unfavorable weather are responsible for the condition of the oats being below the average at the present time and later reports may bring about brighter prospects.

The corn planting was extremely late and with unfavorable weather the reports at this time are not complete and no estimate of any accuracy can be made at this time.

ANOTHER TEAM

Hotel Proprietors will Show Ability on the Bases.

The Court House base ball team has accepted a challenge from the hotel men's nine and will meet in deadly combat on the Kurtz Playground next Monday evening at five o'clock. The new aggregation in the list of local base ball teams will present the following line-up: pitcher, Aaron Schlosser; catcher, George Lynch; first base George Gangwisch; second base, John Hall; short stop, Ken. Lynch; third base, "Bill" Eckert; outfielders, Naylor Tate, George Sipe, Charles Kimple or Davd Shultz.

PLAN BIG TIME

Parade and Speaking at Dedication of New Armory.

The New Oxford Sons of Veterans are completing the plans for the dedication of their new armory on July 4th. A big parade of patriotic and military orders from York and Adams counties will be held. The address will be made by Congressman Albert Johnston, of the State of Washington. Congressman Beales will be master of ceremonies at the rostrum. The local patriotic orders are making their plans to take part in the event.

WILL CHANGE BRIDGE

No More Accidents after New Oxford Structure is Fixed.

Repairs to the bridge over the Conewago a mile this side of New Oxford are contemplated by the county commissioners, which will do away with a very dangerous condition. The reconstruction will allow vehicles approaching from one side to be seen from the other, and the likelihood of accidents will be materially reduced. The repairs contemplate new wings, a concrete floor and the change in grade.

KILL THE BORER

Get after the Pest at once and Keep after it.

Reports from several sections of the State indicate that peach tree borers are unusually active at this time of the year. One correspondent in writing to Zoologist H. A. Surface, of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, calls attention to "many slender worms, white and quite active, acting a good deal like very minute, quick acting angle worms." Professor Surface says:

"The slender white worms found in the gum at the base of peach trees are the larvae of flies. They feed in the gums and do not attack the trees. They do not cause the gum to exude and therefore are not injurious. The presence of gum does not mean the presence of borers, as gum may come from several causes, but when there are fine grains, like sawdust, in the gum, it is a sure evidence of the presence of peach tree borers.

"The only thing to do is to go after them with a knife and cut them out, or dissolve one ounce of cyanide of potassium in two gallons of water and pour this around the base of the tree and cover it with earth. Beginning about the latter part of June wash the base of the tree once a month for three applications with lime-sulfur solution containing some sediment, and this will keep other borers from entering."

WOULD STAY EAST

Howard Gets Release so that he Need not Return to Denver.

When Earl Howard was let go by Denver this spring it was under agreement that he should return in August for a further trial in class A ball. In speaking of Howard's release the Denver paper gave him credit for a vast amount of stuff but said he needed a year more experience to be ripe for fast company. Then with a league composed largely of elder players Rebel Oakes, manager of the Denver Bears, wanted men of known class A ability. Without any of that "I didn't get a fair chance" stuff Earl has decided that Colorado is too far away and if any managers in higher leagues want his services it will have to be in this section of the country, so at his own request he has secured his outright release from the Denver club.

HARD LUCK BUT WIN

Hanover Players Do not Let Troubles Discourage them.

Manager Starr, of the Hanover team, has been able to keep up a winning club despite the efforts of Fortune to put him down. Many men facing his discouragements would have thrown up their job. Bill Pownall was out two weeks with a dislocated knee, Mackert, regarded throughout the league as a mighty clever ball player, was lost; "Hank" Knauer, who had won six out of his seven games, quit; "Ned" Crowder was out for almost two weeks with a broken rib and now to top the whole story Starr himself is playing with a torn hand. Despite these handicaps "Billy" has given Hanover a winning club.

MILITIA OF NATION.

The organized, uniformed militia of national guard of the United States consists of 9,103 officers and 123,105 enlisted men, a total of 132,208, divided among the states as follows:

DISPLAY FLAGS SAYS BURGESS

Gettysburg should Follow Custom Observed All over the United States in Time of War and Show Colors.

Following the example set by other towns and cities all over the United States, Gettysburg will display the flag during the present stirring times when the country is threatened with war, if not actually engaged in it. Burgess Eicholtz this morning issued a request that all business places and private residences put out their flags to show that this town is in line with the spirit shown elsewhere.

The general purpose in displaying the flag is to instill patriotism and to awaken love of country in the hearts of all citizens. In towns and cities where recruiting is going on for the militia, the appearance of the flag is said to be one of the greatest influences to get young men to join the service. Others who have no intention of going into the regular army or the militia are stirred to activity in other lines and the effect is most wholesome.

All over the country the flags are being flung to the breeze and the effect is sure to be marked as one cannot go anywhere without seeing the Stars and Stripes: Adams County towns in addition to Gettysburg are asked to fall in line and this section will do its full share.

Foolish Believers in Luck.

Shallow men believe in luck, believe in circumstances. It was somebody's name, or he happened to be there at the time, or it was so then, and another day it would have been otherwise. Strong men believe in cause and effect. The man was born to do it, and his father was born to be the father of him and of this deed, and by looking narrowly, you shall see there was no luck in the matter, but it was all a problem in arithmetic, or an experiment in chemistry.—Emerson.

Princeton's Crew Captain.

Robert Armstrong Cochran of Maysville, Ky., has been re-elected captain of the Princeton varsity crew for next year. Cochran has been a member of the varsity crew for two years and stroked the eight which defeated Yale, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Columbia and the Navy this spring. Cochran prepared for Princeton at the Montclair academy and the Princeton Preparatory school.

MILITIA EASY FOR RAILROADS

Have Ample Facilities, They Report, to Take All Troops to Border.

The railroads of the country say they are ready for the greatest preparedness test—moving of the militia of the country to the Mexican border.

Railroad officials east and west unite in declaring that as fast as the administration orders state troops moved they will be ready to transport them. The way is cleared for the movement of troop trains, and engines and cars sufficient to handle the thousands of men are said to be available.

The problem of transporting supplies may be more complicated. The eastern roads are just emerging from a serious freight congestion, but the managers believe sufficient cars will be available to handle the additional business.

"Western railroads, facing their greatest test for efficiency, can move the 80,000 to 100,000 infiltia summoned to the Mexican border without a hitch and without affecting regular passenger traffic." This was the statement of railroad officials who schedule the operation of most of the troop trains.

HOUSE TO ARREST MARSHALL

Federal Attorney in New York to be Haled Before Bar for Contempt.

Washington, June 22.—United States district attorney H. Snowden Marshall, of New York, will be haled before the bar of the house to answer a charge of contempt because of criticism of the judiciary sub-committee's investigation of impeachment proceedings against him.

This action was decided upon by the house Tuesday when it sustained, by a vote of 208 to 85, charges of contempt against Mr. Marshall. It is probable that he will be publicly censured. Impeachment may also be imposed.

Munitions Men Needed at Home.

Howard E. Coffin, chairman of the industrial preparedness committee of the naval consulting board, will call the attention of the war department to the inadvisability of calling for military duty skilled workmen of industrial plants manufacturing war munitions. A representative of one of the largest manufacturers spoke to Mr. Coffin of the matter.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Peter Knight, defeated for political office in his town, decides to venture New York in order that the family fortunes might benefit by the expected rise of his charming daughter, Lorelei.

CHAPTER II—A well-known critic interviews Lorelei Knight, now stage beauty with Bergman's Revue, for a special article. Her coin-hunting mother outlines Lorelei's ambitions, but Slosson, the press agent, later adds his information.

CHAPTER III—Lorelei attends Millionaire Hammon's gorgeous entertainment. She meets Merkle, a wealthy dyspeptic, who seems fond of scandal.

CHAPTER IV—Bob Wharton breaks into the ball in a novel way and wins a thousand dollars from his father. Merkle asks Lorelei to be his detective in an affair which he fears. The intoxicated Bob Wharton insults Lorelei and then jumps in the fountain.

CHAPTER V—Jim Knight's doings disgust Lorelei and arouse her suspicion. Her dressing room partner looms as a central figure in the blackmail scheme against Hammon. Mrs. Croft, the dresser, tells what she heard.

CHAPTER VI—Lorelei meets Merkle to warn him of the proposed trap for Hammon. They go for a long auto ride in the night.

CHAPTER VII—The auto is wrecked; Merkle and Lorelei are forced to walk to the Chateau. Arriving, they meet Jim Knight and suspicious companions who leave suddenly. Hammon appears from within and tells of being tricked in company with Lilas Lynn.

CHAPTER VIII.

When Lorelei awoke on the following afternoon her first inquiry was for Jim; but he had not come home, and her mother knew nothing of his whereabouts. Lorelei ate her breakfast in silence; then, in reply to a question, accounted for the lateness of her arrival by saying that she had dined with Mr. Merkle.

At the name Mrs. Knight pricked up her ears; she undertook to pick out of her daughter all that had occurred, down to the most insignificant detail. Lorelei had always made a confidante of her mother in such cases; but this time the latter's inquisitiveness grated on her, and she answered the questions put to her grudgingly. She could not help likening her mother to a magpie, although the thought shocked her. There was the same sly angle of countenance, a similar furtiveness of purpose; the very expression of Mrs. Knight's keen, hard eyes was like nothing so much as that of the prying bird's. Displeased at her own irritation, Lorelei made the excuse of a shopping trip to escape from the house.

At the nearest news stand she bought the afternoon papers, and was relieved to find no mention of the incidents of the night before. It appeared that Hammon and Merkle had succeeded in their attempt to suppress the story—if, indeed, there had ever been any intention of making it public.

Looking back upon last night's homeward ride, she was wholly at a loss. In view of Jim's words and of what she had gathered at the theater she had felt sure of Lilas' complete knowledge of the blackmail plot, but Hammon's unwavering faith in the girl and Lilas' own story of her relations with Max Melcher had awakened a doubt. What concerned her far more than the moral complexion of the liaison was her brother's connection with the unlawful scheme of extortion. Jim, she saw, had gone wrong with a vengeance, and the consequences to him troubled her, for in spite of all that he might be or do she cherished a sisterly affection for him. Family ties were very real and very strong to her—strong enough to keep her loyal to her kin even after the demoralizing change in her whole mode of life. The firmest, in fact, the only bond that she had ever known, was that of blood; obedience, faithfulness and affection had been born in her, and she never thought to question their sacredness.

Idling down Fifth avenue, she found herself in front of a fashionable department store. A knot of curious people were gaping at a unique automobile which stood in the line of vehicles along the curb, and she paused to look. The equipage was snow white in color; the chauffeur and a stiff-backed footman were in blood red with white facings on their livery. A tiny mop of a lapdog, imprisoned within the closed body of the car, was barking frenziedly at the throng. Across the doors, in gold letters an inch high, was the name "Adoree Demorest."

As she entered the store Lorelei reflected with some disgust that no visiting rajah, no barbaric potentate—no one, in fact, except a self-advertised musical comedy queen—would so flagrantly defy good taste as to ride in such a vehicle.

She was engaged in her final purchase when a dazzling creature in red and white descended upon her with exclamations of surprise and delight. It was Mademoiselle Demorest herself, and her greeting was so effusive that the stream of shoppers halted in the aisle. She carried the mate to the excitable poodle that defied the curiosity seekers outside.

"Miss Knight! I'm so glad to see you again," she burbled. "How sweet you look! I hoped we'd meet again but where have you been? Have you finished your shopping? Then do come and help me match some rose du Barry."

Lorelei felt herself flushing uncomfortably under the stares of the onlookers, and, glad to escape, she moved away beside the undisturbed cause of all the furore.

"You Never Really Believed That King Stuff, Did You?"

Miss Demorest seemed genuinely delighted at this encounter. She clung to her companion, chattering vivaciously; then, when the rose du Barry had been matched, she suggested tea.

"We'll run right over to the Waldorf—my car is outside." But Lorelei declined, explaining lamely that she did not care for public places.

The dancer's expression and tone changed abruptly. "I supposed you were like all the others."

"Well, I'm not. When I'm away from the theater I try to forget it. I—hate the business."

The reply, which came with sincere feeling, widened Lorelei's eyes with uncontrollable surprise.

"Here, too," said Adoree Demorest, quietly. "But I'm not allowed to forget it. Our first meeting made me think you were—out with banners. I was hired on that occasion to be naughty. What do you say to some real tea at my house? Just you and I?"

Lorelei's heart sank at the thought of that gaudy machine outside, but there was an honest appeal in the speaker's eyes, and, moreover, the memory of her obligation rose to prevent her from appearing ungrateful. "I'd be delighted," she falsified, and, gurgling with appreciation, Miss Demorest hurried her toward the nearest exit. In the street, however, Adoree paused, and her next words showed that she was not wanting in womanly intuition.

"I shan't inflict you with a ride in that circus wagon. It's all right for me, but—you're one of the decent kind. If you have a reputation it won't do to parade it in a show case. We'll take a taxi." Lorelei's relief must have been obvious, for Adoree sped swiftly to the corner, then was back again without the dog. "If there's anything more conspicuous than a blonde with a white poodle," she explained, "it's two blondes with two poodles." Then she flung herself into the cab and slammed the door.

"You must think I'm very rude," her guest ventured.

"Nothing of the sort. I know just how you feel." Miss Demorest's smile was a trifle strained. "Only—I'm awfully lonesome, and—I'll take care that nobody sees us."

"Now I know I've been nasty." Lorelei felt her embarrassment growing, for this woman differed entirely from what she had expected. Underneath the dancer's extravagant theatricalism she appeared natural and unaffected. Adoree changed the current of the conversation by saying:

"I hope those bloodhounds get to fighting."

"How—funny!" Lorelei was eying the speaker with undisguised curiosity. "You're not a Frenchwoman?"

"Agnes Smith is the name. Decent by descent, but an actress by advertising. What's your game?"

"Um-m—My nose is straight; I don't limp; so I'm an actress by force of feature."

Both girls laughed unaffectedly.

"I like you," said the dancer. "Do you mind if I get out of this cast-iron corset and into a kimono when we get home?"

"Have you a spare one?"

"Dozens; but they're not very clean."

"That's lovely. And let's make the tea weak."

"Oh, I can't drink anything strong! I'm an awful counterfeit."

"I'm beginning to think so. I—wonder if I'm dreaming."

The girls had much in common; they chattered continuously through the short ride, and when they alighted from the taxicab they disputed over the right to pay for it. When the guest was ushered into Adoree's apartment she received another surprise, for the place was neither elaborate nor showy. It consisted merely of two large, comfortable rooms overlooking a side street lined with monotonous brownstone boarding houses.

A battered teakettle was set to boil over an absurd alcohol stove that required expert assistance to maintain its equilibrium. Adoree flung out of her finery and donned a Japanese robe, offering another to Lorelei. A plate of limber crickers was unearthed from somewhere, also the disreputable remains of a box of marshmallows and these latter Mademoiselle Demorest toasted on a hatpin.

"You're the most extraordinary person," her guest at length remarked. "Aren't you going to show me your jewels or—anything like that?"

"You probably have better jewels of your own," carelessly replied Adoree; then she voiced a very tame and womanly oath as a marshmallow dripped into the flames. "Pickles! I spoiled that one."

"But the cabochon rubies are real."

"Sure. So is the 'square toe' who brings 'em and takes 'em away; so is the bond that covers 'em. Lordy, but they are pretty!"

"Then the king didn't give them to you?"

"My dear, I never saw a king—outside of a pinochle deck. If I lost one of those rubies the Maiden Lane Shylock who owns them would tear enough curled hair out of his beard to fill a mattress. You never really believed that king stuff, did you?"

"Why, yes."

"I had no idea it worked so well." Again Miss Demorest smiled crookedly. "No wonder you didn't want to go to the Waldorf with me; I wonder you consented to come here."

"Your advance work is great—"

"I knew the public swallowed it; but I supposed the profession knew press stuff when they saw it. I sang and danced for ten years in this country and never got better time than the schuetzen parks and airdomes. I was Agnes Smith then. Somehow I got the price of a ticket to England, and I pulled the airdome stuff that had scored in Little Rock and Michigan City, and it got by somehow. My mother was a Canuck, so I knew some French, and eventually I reached the continent. There I met the Old Nick. You may think the devil is what he looks like on the ham cans; but, in reality he's a little, fat, bald man with a tenor voice, and he eats gloves. His name is Aubrey Lane. He was in Paris selling patent garters at the time. He saw me work at a cabaret and told me I was good, but not good enough. I'd known that for years, so he didn't hurt my feelings. He confessed that he was tired of working and intended to have me make a lot of money for him, but warned me that he had expensive tastes and I'd have to pay well for the privilege. He was right: I did. But here I am in electric lights on Broadway while he is exercising a wheeled chair at Atlantic City."

"He's your manager?"

"He's that very little thing. He offered to make me a star if I'd allow him to hitch his chariot to me—on a share of the gross. There was one trifling sacrifice I had to make in the nature of my personal reputation—so he told me. He began by tying a can to the 'Agnes Smith' and handed me 'Adoree Demorest' instead; then he went to work. He really did work, too, although it nearly killed him, and he's never done anything since. The king fable is a joke on the other side, but New York swallowed it clear up to the sinker, and Aubrey gaffed the Palace Garden management for a three years' contract. Of course, my advertised salary is phony, just like the rubies and the wrecked throne and that gilded bandwagon with the poodles and the stuffed supers on the box. Aubrey owns them all except the rubies, which he rents. I'm billed as the most notorious woman in America, and the shred of reputation I have left wouldn't make a necktie for a gnat, whereas in reality I love marshmallows and tea much more than men. But I'm a star, at the head of my own company, and playing to sidewalk prices. Do you think it was a good bargain?"

Lorelei had listened with breathless interest. Now she burst out impulsively:

"You poor dear."

Miss Smith smiled, but her eyes were tragic.

"Sometimes I cry when I think about it. I—cry a good deal," said she. "I didn't realize until too late what it meant, but, you see, I was tired of working, tired of ambition, and I wanted to come home. Thank God, I have no people! I save all the money I can, and when I get enough I'm going to take Agnes Smith out of the moth-balls, dust her off tenderly, and go to raising ducks."

"Ducks? What do you mean?"

"What I say. That has always been my ambition."

"Why not quit now?"

"What's the use? I'm half way through the swamp; the mud is as deep behind as it is in front. But I'm deathly afraid all the time I'll be found out—I'd—rather be notorious than ridiculous. Of course, Aubrey sees to that."

"Are you fond of him?"

Adoree turned up her nose. "He's a little pink rabbit. I don't like any man, and I never have. There's only one I'd really care to meet; his name is Campbell Pope."

"The critic. He is nice."

"The beast. Did you read what he said about me? I'll never rest until I have a lock of his hair that I've plucked myself. I'd love to have his whole scalp—with, say, one ear attached—hanging on my bureau where I could see it every morning when I wake up. Somehow I don't seem to mind the press stuff that Aubrey puts out, but Pope—actually believes what he wrote. And other people will believe it, too. I—I—Gosh! I'm going to cry again."

Lorelei nodded in perfect sympathy; she did not laugh. "I haven't any girl chum; let's be friends," said she.

Adoree had been nibbling at marshmallows as she talked; as she wiped her eyes now she left a smear of powdered sugar on her cheek.

"I'd love to—I'm simply bursting to confide in somebody—but we couldn't go around together."

"Why? I don't care what people think."

"You can't afford to be reckless. We're each playing our own game and chasing the dollar in our own way. The men you met would make life unbearable for you if they knew we were pals. Aubrey was right: a girl must either be mighty good or mighty bad in this business—or make people think she is, which amounts to the same thing. You have had easy going because you're known to be straight; but if you ever get into the papers watch what will happen. You'll have to fight. You wouldn't like that kind of fighting, either, and—I'm not sure you could stand it."

As Lorelei walked homeward that afternoon she felt an unaccustomed warmth in her breast, and realized that she, too, had been very lonely in the city. The certainty that she had made a friend gladdened her heart. She looked forward with a thrill to the morrow when she could see Adoree again.

During her absence Jim had returned and departed; but a note was waiting for her. It had been brought by a messenger, and read:

"Things look bad. I'm afraid we'll be implicated, too. Better see your brother quickly. M."

AN ELEPHANT RIDE

The First Try on a Padded Animal Is a Fearful Ordeal.

FEELS LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE.

And Resembles For a Time Trying to Sit on a Steep Slanting Roof—The Big Brutes Are Timid, and Little Pigs and Quicksands Terrify Them.

Elephant riding is a thing that, like guessing people's names correctly, requires a good deal of practice. The first ride is a thing never to be forgotten, more especially if it happens to be on a pad elephant—that is to say, one that carries no howdah or seat of any kind except an immense, hard, lumpy mattress, which is fastened on by four large rough ropes, pulled as taut as man's strength can pull them. If there are two or three other persons already mounted you get a corner of this mattress to sit on and are told to hold on by the ropes.

Meanwhile the elephant is getting tired of kneeling and keeps making heaving motions unpleasantly suggestive of the sea. You strive wildly to get your fingers under one of the ropes and are asked impatiently if you are ready.

You do not feel at all ready or likely ever to be ready, for your seat is uncertain and slippery, and for the life of you you cannot get a fair hold on the rope.

Breaking your nails in a last desperate effort, you say feebly that you are ready, when with a sudden jerk that seems to drag all your bones out of their sockets, you are tilted up on a steep slope, about as pleasant to sit on as the side of a slate roof.

But you have no time to enjoy the position, for there comes another foundering jerk that knocks your hat over your eyes and throws you violently against your next neighbor, after which you find your seat is level again, and it presently dawns upon you that this earthquake was, in truth, merely the elephant's customary way of rising. He is now slowly and solemnly stalking onward, as you are aware by feeling your spine rhythmically and soundlessly dislocated at each noiseless step.

At first it seems to you as odd that you should ever come to like riding an elephant, as that eels should come to like being skinned, and your friend's assurance that you will ere long be able to dispense with the aid of ropes and go on chatting and even smiling while that colossal upheaval takes place falls on the ear as an idle tale.

Nevertheless it is the truth. Before a week is over you hardly notice the getting up or the kneeling down. You rarely take hold of a rope, and you are indifferent to almost any angle of steepness. You learn to appreciate the restfulness of being on a colossus that will never stumble, never shy, never frolic and with whose guidance you have no more to do than you have with that of a ship at sea.

Even when an elephant is mutinous he is so in a solemn, well considered manner. He will not run away, though he will on occasion stride away, and a sufficient absurd sight it is, though not to those on his back.

I once saw an elephant try conclusions with his mahout and stride off defiantly in a wrong direction till the savage blows rained upon his head by the driver with his heavy iron hook made him change his tactics. He pulled up short and began rocking his body violently to and fro till first one rider and then another was sent flying until all were gone.

The sight of them strewing the ground around him and ruefully rubbing their bruises assuaged his anger. An elephantine smile lit up his rugged face, and he once more rendered cheerful obedience to his mahout.

Considering his strength and size, the elephant is a timorous beast. They are greatly alarmed by small pigs, and I have known an otherwise sensible elephant utterly routed by a litter of piglings scampering between his legs in thick grass jungle.

Now, a pigling can never have hurt an elephant. Therefore whence his fear? Can it be their latent powers of squealing?

Certain it is that pigs share with quicksands the power of terrifying an elephant. His reasons for fearing quicksands are weighty ones, and it is impossible not to sympathize with the huge beast's agony of terror when he finds himself on unsound ground.

A spot was pointed out to us along the river bank at Fyzabad, where a year ago an elephant had got into a quicksand and been lost.

All that could be done to save him was done, but the treacherous sand would not forego its victim. Four days he took to sink out of sight, and then nothing could be seen of him but the tip of his trunk, still piteously beckoning in vain for help. At last the cruel sand closed over that, and his last agony was ended.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

WILL SELL ARMOR PLATE AT COST

Bethlehem Steel Makes New Offer to Senate Committee.

PRICES WERE NOT TOO HIGH

President Grace Offers Facilities of Big Steel Plant to Government in Event of War at Own Terms.

Washington, June 22.—President E. G. Grace, of the Bethlehem Steel company, has written a letter to Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs, in which he makes an entirely new offer.

This offer is to the effect that his company will manufacture armor plate for the government at actual cost plus such overhead expenses as the federal trade commission may determine to be fair.

President Grace, after reciting the fact that the naval appropriation bill as it comes to the senate from the house contains a provision to construct a government armor plant at a cost of $11,000,000, says: "The Bethlehem Steel company will agree, for such period as the government may designate as fully protecting the public interest, to manufacture armor plate for the government of the United States at actual cost of operation plus such charges for overhead expenses, interest, and depreciation as the federal trade commission may decide to be fair."

President Grace not only denies that the company's act is in the nature of a "deathbed" repentance, but he also declares that the company does not for one moment concede that the prices charged for armor in the past, $432.62 per ton, have been unreasonable. Since 1887, the government has taken but a trifle over twenty-five per cent of the company's capacity for armor plate production. Had a larger tonnage been contracted for, the price would have been lower. President Grace declares that the government's $11,000,000 plant will cost over $15,000,000, and that his company can manufacture for the government cheaper than the government can do for itself.

"It is said," President Grace's letter continues, "that a government plant should be built to take the profit out of war. Our company has no inclination to make capital out of the military necessities of the United States. In the event of war or threatened war, all the facalities we have for any purpose are at the disposal of the United States government upon its own terms. That means not only our armor plant; it includes our commercial plant, and our ordnance-making facilities. We have urged no program of preparedness; we desire only to be able to serve the government as we may be called upon."

President Grace states that his armor plant was built at the request of the government, that this request has, by the implicit action of successive secretaries of the navy, been frequently renewed; that the Bethlehem Steel company has repeatedly agreed to place all the figures relating to the cost of armor plate production at the disposal of committees of congress or the navy department and that the senate committee's own figures show that the United States has for twenty years obtained armor plate at a price less than that paid by any of the great naval powers.

After reciting that some $20,000,000 are now invested in three armor making plants, President Grace urges the committee to reconsider its previous recommendation that a government plant be built, not "with reference to the interests of the Bethlehem Steel company, but with supreme regard for adequate national defense and sound public policy."

DRUGS AT HIGHEST PRICE ON RECORD

Present Problem is High Cost of Being Sick.

Reading, Pa., June 22.—"The high cost of living has been a common topic of discussion.

"The high cost of being kept from dying or even of just being sick, bids fair to exceed it. The present high prices or drugs and chemicals has never been equalled, even in time of the civil war."

These were the opening sentences of the report of Charles E. Vanderkleed, chairman of the committee on drugs, presented at the session of the thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical association.

The chairman of the committee on legislation, S. C. Henry, of Philadelphia, presented an interesting report concerning the narcotic drug sales since the crusade against drug habitues by the government. Said Mr. Henry:

"It has been shown that the sale of narcotic drugs has fallen off eighty per cent." The high cost of drugs and chemicals is one of the chief topics of the convention. The war in Europe is the cause, says Mr. Vanderkleed.

CARRANZA SEIZES MUNITIONS

17,000,000 Rounds Taken in Charge by Mexican Officials.

Laredo, Tex., June 22.—Approximately 17,000,000 rounds of ammunition have been taken in charge by Carranza authorities throughout Mexico, and the government factory is working twenty-four hours daily to augment this supply, according to an American who arrived from Mexico City.

The output of the government factory is approximately 30,000 rounds of cartridges daily, he said.

Tasty Fishes.

ESCALOPED FISH.—One and one-half pounds of fish, a cupful of fresh breacrumbs, a cupful of cream sauce, a teaspoonful of grated onions, two tablespoonfuls of finely cut parsley, two teaspoonfuls of salt, an eighth teaspoonful of white pepper, a quarter teaspoonful of paprika, a teaspoonful Worcestershire sauce (if you have it) and a teaspoonful of butter. Put the fish in a shallow pan and cover with boiling water, adding a teaspoonful of salt. Boil twenty-five minutes, removing all skin and bone. Brush earthenware dish or agate pie plate with butter, sprinkle with half the breadcrumbs, then the fish and the balance of the breadcrumbs. Cover with the cream sauce, to which you have added the onions, salt, pepper, paprika, half the paprika and Worcestershire sauce. Bake uncovered for thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Sprinkle with parsley. Cream sauce is made as usual. This mixture can be put into scallops or clamshells and baked in oven.

Fish Loaf.—Flake the remnants of any baked fish. There should be two cupfuls; if not fill out with chopped clams. Add a cupful of stuffing left from fish or a cupful of coarse breadcrumbs moistened with melted butter and a beaten egg. Season well with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of finely minced pickle. Turn into a small bread pan or quart mold, cover with buttered paper, place in pan of hot water and cook in moderate oven about one-half hour. Unmold on a hot platter and serve with white sauce.

Creamed Finnan Haddie.—Cook a teaspoonful of chopped green pepper for five minutes in one-quarter cupful of butter, stirring constantly. Stir in one-third cupful of flour, then add gradually two cupfuls of rich milk. Cook and stir until smooth, season with one-half teaspoonful salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of paprika, add one and one-half cupfuls of flaked cooked finnan haddie and three chopped hard cooked eggs, cook five minutes longer and serve on toasted bread.

Lee Fohl's Methods.

Lee Fohl, who nominally has managed the Cleveland Indians into the front rank of American league clubs, has views that will strike some managers as entirely unorthodox. For example, Fohl takes little hand in disciplining his men as to their personal habits. When night time rolls around Fohl hies to bed when he gets ready. He doesn't worry to check up his men as they return and discipline the tardy. If they get in at midnight, why, an hour's later sleep in the morning fixes them all right, according to the Fohl theory of the proper way to manage ball players.

In other words, Fohl believes that it is inadvisable to train a baseball player as strictly as one would an athlete who is being conditioned for a track event. No person, he believes, can stay "on edge," in strict training, for six months. Staleness would surely result.

Soft Gingerbread.

One-half cupful of sugar, a cupful of molasses, one-half cupful of lard or butter, half a teaspoonful each of ginger, cinnamon and cloves, two eggs three cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in a cupful of hot water. Mix together the sugar, molasses and spices. Add the water in which the soda has been dissolved stir well, then add the flour and the well beaten eggs. Bake in a buttered pan, in a thin loaf. Cut into squares and serve hot.

WON THE AUDIENCE.

Bernhardt's Clever Trick Turned Coldness to Enthusiasm.

Once when Sarah Bernhardt was acting in Italy the audience was rather unfriendly, owing to the fact that the prices of the seats had been considerably increased.

After the first act Mme. Bernhardt called her maid and gave her some directions in an undertone. The maid left the theater, but speedily returned and just before her mistress went on the stage again she handed her something as she stood in the wings. The scene progressed. "The Divine Sarah" seemed hoarse. She tried to clear her throat, passed her handkerchief across her mouth, and suddenly a stream of blood poured from her lips, and she fell into the arms of the actor with whom she was playing.

The curtain was promptly rung down, and the audience waited breathlessly to hear the worst. All their previous vexation was turned to sympathy, and when it was announced that the great actress would shortly resume her part rather than disappoint them the cheering was deafening. When madame came on again the people applauded her as loudly as formerly they had shown their disapproval, and the rest of the play was one long triumph.

But that audience never knew the truth, for when madame had sent her maid out of the theater it was to get her a small bladder of red ink, which she kept in her handkerchief and which she bit through with her teeth so as to produce the alarming effect that had transformed her audience.—Pearson's Weekly.

An Eskimo Dinner.

Admiral Peary was talking in Washington about the hardships of polar exploration.

"The white north is the country of hardships," he said—"hardships that are borne cheerfully and gayly, in the spirit of the Eskimo woman.

"An Eskimo woman at the dinner hour served out to her family half a candle apiece.

"'Light refreshments,' she said, smiling."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Ed Walsh's Arm Seems Gone.

Ed Walsh was one of the greatest pitchers the game has ever known, but the old curving cord seems frayed. Walsh is in wonderful shape physically. He is as strong as he ever was, but somehow the old pitching piston has not the "bam" that made it dreaded all over Ban Johnson's show rings.

It may be that every pitcher has just so many chucks in his arm and that when he has thrown that number of balls he is done. No pitcher ever worked harder than Walsh to get right, and though every muscle in his big frame is like steel he cannot get the old "hop" on the ball any more.—New York Sun.

JUMP FROM BED
IN MORNING AND DRINK HOT WATER

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are devised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

Easy & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

Prepared Specially for This Newspaper By Pictorial Review

A Lingerie Model Both Dainty and Practical

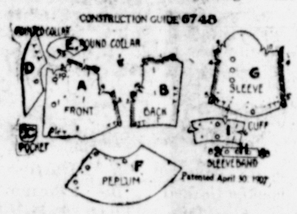

Dressing Sacque of cotton crepe embroidered with silk polka dots and trimmed with lace. A practical design for general wear.

Cotton crepe trimmed with polka dots worked in silk of a contrasting color makes a dressing sacque that is dainty and practical. It is always dressy in effect, yet costs so little that one can wear it at any time without having the conscience chide one for extravagance. In medium size this design requires 3⅝ yards 36-inch material, with ¾ yard of beading and 5½ yards of lace. The collar is a turn-over affair, pointed at the back and at each side of the front.

The sacque develops quickly even under the touch of the inexperienced dressmaker, if she follows directions carefully and consults the construction guide frequently.

The first thing to do is form a box-plait in the right front of the sacque, turning under the front edge at notches and taking up a tuck on line of slot perforations near center-front; stitch both sides of box-plait ⅝ inch from folded edges catching front edge in with tuck. Turn under front edge of left front 1½ inch for a hem. Close shoulder seam as notched and form tuck, creasing on line of slot perforations in front and back; stitch 1¼ inch from folded edge. Close underarm seam as notched. Gather lower edge of front and back betwen double "TT" perforations.

The center-front of the peplum is indicated by large "O" perforations. Close center-back seam. Sew to ower edge of front and back between dou- and center backs even, large "O" perforation at upper edge of peplum at under-arm seam. Adjust belting 2 inches wide to position underneath waist; stitch lower edge of belting along the seam, joining the waist and peplum.

For the pointed collar, sew to neck edge, center-backs even, and along indicating small "o" perforations in front, single large "P" perforations even.

Adjust the pocket to position, upper edge of pocket between small "o" perforations. Close the sleeve seam as notched. Gather lower edge of sleeve between double "TT" perforations. Close sleeveband as notched, sew to sleeve, seams even. Sew sleeve in armhole as notched, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam, easing in any fulness.

This sacque may be developed as fancifully as desired. It is lovely in soft batiste trimmed along the edge of the front and about the peplum and sleeves with deep lace ruffles.

Pictorial Review Dressing Sacque No. 6748. Sizes, 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 15 cents.

Why engine trouble

Frankly, there may be steenteen factors contributing at one time or another to "engine trouble." But it's always a safe bet that the greatest offender in the whole militaristic mob is Poor Lubrication. There's one sure way to banish lubrication-troubles: Atlantic Motor Oils.

Here are oils that have done as much toward banishing engine-trouble via better lubrication as Atlantic Gasoline, the accepted standard, has toward increasing power, mileage and general car-happiness.

Atlantic Polarine is commander of the crew of four principal motor oils, being the correct lubricant for eight out of ten cars. In all alternative cases, Atlantic "Light," Atlantic "Medium," or Atlantic "Heavy" is the one to use. Ask your garageman which.

In actual tests, it has been definitely demonstrated that a properly lubricated motor will yield as much as five additional miles to the gallon of gasoline.

Use the combination: Atlantic Gasoline for fuel, Atlantic Motor Oils for lubrication.

The oldest and largest manufacturers of lubricating oils in the world recommend this combination to you without reservation. They ought to know whereof they speak—and they DO.

Read up on this subject. We have published a handsome and comprehensive book about lubrication. It is free. Ask your garage for it. If they cannot supply you, drop us a postal and the book will be sent you without charge.

A Case of Misplaced Confidence

By ETHEL MARSH

The main difficulty that stands in the way of us women competing with men in business and the professions is not, I think, that we are their inferiors, but that nature constantly threatens to break down our intentions.

When a girl begins to make her preparations for a profession she has before her four years of college and another four years of study in preparation for the field in which she is about to work. To a man the care of a wife and family is a natural consequence, and his success in his profession goes hand in hand with his being a husband and father. A woman under the same circumstances feels that marriage is tantamount—in most cases—to giving up all that she has so long been making preparations for.

When I was about to prepare myself for the medical profession I fully considered this question and concluded that I must decide between making medicine my life profession and a possible marriage. I decided in favor of the profession and made a solemn resolution that I would never marry. How I failed to carry out this resolve I am about to relate. I confess I am not well pleased at the cause of my failure. Had I met a member of my own profession—an eminent surgeon, for instance—and formed a professional as well as a matrimonial partnership with him I should not possibly regret my surrender to the little god. Instead of this, I was induced to break my resolution by trickery.

I had barely commenced to practice my profession when I was called upon to visit a young man who was the oldest son of well to do parents. Indeed, the family was a very loving one, he being the idol. I was called in by his sister, next younger than he, who gave me his symptoms, which were, as she described them, threatened melancholia.

"Bertie," she said, "is so attractive to the girls that they have spoiled him. I think that if he had been born poor instead of rich and homely instead of handsome he would have chosen a profession and made a success of it. As it is, he has no object in life and is sinking into a state of mental inanition. It's such a pity, for he is the loveliest boy in the world."

This description of Albert Emerson was not calculated to interest me in his case, for it indicated that he was just the kind of a man I would despise. When I saw him there was something about him that supported his sister's description of him. I did not wonder that silly girls were disposed to make fools of themselves about him. When he looked at me out of his confidence inviting eyes and smiled his confiding smile, I was seized with an irresistible desire to serve him.

If anything was needed to convince me that he was one of those lovable men who win by frankness it was when his sister left me alone with him.

"Really, doctor," he said, "I can't permit you to waste your time and good intentions on so worthless a person as myself. I must tell you a secret. I am not ill at all. I'm in love. Nothing will cure me except a response from the woman who has engrossed my whole being. Your drugs will not be of any avail with me, but evidently you can serve me. My mind, I admit, is ailing. If you know of any medicine that will steady me mentally prescribe it and, above all, do not fail to visit me regularly. Do you believe in the effect of one mind over another to the subject mind's benefit or the reverse?"

"I certainly do."

"Well, from the moment I first saw you I felt the effect of your mentality. It may be that this love I bear is a symptom. If so your mentality may cure my body, and that may drive away this craving for the woman who has absorbed me. I beg of you, don't desert me. Come and see me often."

I was at this time much interested in the cure of disease by mental or spiritual influence and was caught by the way the young man put his case. It would interest me to prove that his diagnosis of his case was correct. I would give him the benefit of my mental power over him.

This intention was facilitated by his family. Instead of being received by them as a physician I was treated as a friend. I did not attempt to exert any influence over the patient. I simply permitted whatever influence I possessed to act upon him. He seemed to grow better gradually. One day his sister asked me to ride with him and her. I accepted. Then I rode out with him alone.

I had been visiting Albert Emerson thus semiprofessionally for several months when one day he made a confession to me. I was the woman he loved and had loved long before I had visited him. But this confession was not made until my wings had been so far clipped that I could not fly away.

In other words, I had been trapped. The worst of it was that I did not wish to be untrapped. I had been gradually absorbed by a man who I had not dreamed wanted me or I wanted. And now, ten years after our marriage, he has further confessed that he won me simply because he had heard that I had decided never to marry.

I am shamed through all my nature
To have loved so slight a thing.

But, all the same, I love my husband and my children. My profession has long ago faded away from me.

FREAKS OF NATURE

We Know There Are Giants, but We Do Not Know Why.

THEY ARE A SORT OF PUZZLE.

Sometimes These Titans Are the Result of a Somewhat Mysterious Disease Called Giganticism—Og and Goliath and the Giant Races of Gath.

Giants and dwarfs abound in the region of the Caucasus mountains. Now, why are some people big and some little? In families heredity seems to govern the matter. Where races are concerned it is not so easily explained. We are accustomed, by the way, to think of the Chinese as of inferior height; but that is because our Chinese immigrants nearly all come from the south of China. The people of north China are tall and occasionally approach the gigantic.

Circus giants are not uncommonly sufferers from a disease called giganticism, which in the long run is inevitably fatal. It appears to be due to something wrong with a small gland at the base of the brain, which, in a mysterious way, governs growth. A strange thing about this affliction is that the victim may be attacked long after he has become adult and has ceased to grow in a normal way. A man over thirty years of age may suddenly become a giant, the first warning he gets of the fact being the discovery that he needs a larger hat and bigger boots and gloves.

There are, however, occasional giants who are simply people of extraordinary size, in other respects normal. How to account for them nobody knows unless by calling them freaks of nature. Much more remarkable are the giant families which are found in the Caucasus region, though most individuals of such families are not big enough to be worth while for show purposes. For circus exhibition a giant ought not to be less than seven feet six inches tall. With that stature, plus boots with thick soles and a high hat, a man may be safely advertised as touching the eight foot mark.

Such giant families are not unknown in history. Josephus and other profane historians indorse the statements found in many places in the Bible in regard to the giants of Gath, from which locality, it will be remembered, Goliath hailed. The Bible puts the stature of that redoubtable champion at "six cubits and a span"—in other words, about three inches short of ten feet. This would seem to be the altitude record for a human being, even allowing that the measurement was from the ground to the crest of Goliath's helmet.

The most celebrated of all the giant breed, not excepting Goliath, was Og, king of Bashan. At the time when the wanderings of the Israelites in the wilderness were brought to a close he was ruler over no fewer than sixty cities "fenced with high walls, gates and bars." His indeed was a powerful monarchy, and the conquest of his realm by Moses is looked upon to this day as one of the greatest events in Jewish history.

Og, by the way, was accustomed to sleep in a remarkable bedstead—not of wood or metal, but of basalt.

Whatever the circumstances under which the giant breed existed in Palestine at the time of the first arrival of the Israelites, it is certain that in later years they were scattered about among other peoples. In a political sense some were Hittites and yet others Amorites.

Coming into contact with other races they became, it would seem, either extinct or subordinate. From what little is said of them in history it is to be inferred that they were mentally inferior, though formidable fighters by reason of their great size and strength in an age when mere bodily prowess counted for much.

If Goliath be supposed to have been eight and one-half feet high (allowing for helmet and crest) his stature did not exceed that of the celebrated Winckelmeyer, the tallest man of modern times, who, born in Bavaria, died not so many years ago. The height of many giants has been exaggerated, but Winckelmeyer was carefully measured by the anthropologist Doubes.

A man of less than eight and one-half feet could hardly have worn the enormously heavy armor and accouterments described in the first book of Samuel as composing Goliath's outfit. The staff of his spear, we are told, was "like a weaver's beam," the iron spear head alone weighing 600 shekels, about twenty pounds.

The giant breed in Palestine apparently died out not very long before the birth of Christ.

There have been lesser giant breeds in modern times, but in some instances they have been the result of artificial selection, as, for example, in the case of the wrestlers of Nippon, who, seen in a crowd, stand head and shoulders above the ordinary Japanese.

In the neighborhood of Potsdam there are today many very tall people owing to the fact that King Frederick William's famous regiment of giants was long stationed there. The regiment numbered 2,400 soldiers, and all Europe was searched by the monarch for big men to serve in it.—Philadelphia Record.

His Mistake.

A long standing creditor resolutely climbed the steps, rang the bell and asked if Mr. Spender was at home.

"Yes, sir. Walk right in, sir," said the footman cordially. "Mr. Spender is at home, sir."

"Thank goodness," said the creditor, "I'm going to see my money at last."

"Oh, don't make that mistake, sir," said the footman. "If Mr. Spender had any money he wouldn't be at home."—Washington Star.

Plain Enough.

"How do you like America, count?"

"Quite much, but your figures of speech are somewhat hard to understand. Now, when it dawns upon you"—

"You begin to see daylight," explained the other man.—Louisville Courier Journal.
